PRACTICAL CLUB WORK

CHARITABLE AND SOCIAL EFFORTS OF TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB GROWING

Apart entirely from its work in bringing before its members the best that can be obtained in the way of music and by promoting the study of good literature the Tuesday Afternoon club has inaugurated practical work in connection with the commission of immigration in New York. If a family of immigrants leaves New York for Glendale the Tuesday Afternoon club is notified and the immigrants are met, welcomed and assisted in whatever way is possible to become good American citizens.

Among other charitable works that the club has done during the past year, can be noted in the treasurer's report, contained in the year book, just printed by The Glendale Evening News for the Tuesday Afternoon club, such interesting items as: Care of children at club meetings, $7.50. This item points to a pleasing arrangement for mothers who attend the meetings.

In the extent of its charitable disbursements the club reaches out to such undertakings as the Tuskegee Institute, which received $10 from the treasury. The Jewish Relief Fund which received $10. The Permanent Blind War Relief Fund, which received $5.

The hospital for lepers benefited to the extent of $1. The Morals Efficiency committee was assisted to the extent of $2.50. The Juvenile Protective association got $3. The Chicago Woman's Shelter got $2.50. The San Fernando Mission was donated $5.00.

These disbursements are peculiarly the club's own work. The managing of the successful Constantino concert which brought $100 to the Children's hospital and $100 to the Maternity hospital and $30 for local charity work, was another splendid accomplishment.

In spite of its many wise charities the club starts its financial year with a balance of $113.51.

MR. AND MRS. BECKMAN ENTERTAIN

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Beckman, corner Belmont and Fifth streets, entertained at their spacious home the adult Bible class of the First M. E. church Sunday school of which they are members, Friday evening.

This is a large class and quite active in the Sunday school work.

After the business of the class was dispensed with the guests were entertained very pleasantly by Mr. and Mrs. Beckman's little daughter Alma, and her little friend, who recited in unison, "The Angel of Prayer," and other recitations and songs followed. The little girl sang most beautifully "Perfect Day" and "Comin' Thro' the Rye."

Afterward light refreshments were served.

Everything from first to last was thoroughly enjoyed. Those present were Miss Green, Mrs. Mudge, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnston and his sister, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Bott, Mr. Lindley and his mother, Mrs. Lindley, Mr. and Mrs. Gross, Mrs. C. O. Winters, Mrs. Wagnon, R. M. McGee, teacher and Rev. and Mrs. Snudden.

The class certainly appreciate the kindness and hospitality of their host and hostess.

Morning Hymn, George Henschel.

Indian Summer, Charles Wakefield Cadman.

Is It Rainy, Little Flower? William Blair.

Miss Ruth Markell has delighted many club audiences with her charming personality, wonderful voice, and her original manner of presenting well chosen songs. Miss Markell is noted for her pleasing descriptions of the songs she sings so well.

MRS. A. L. WEAVER,
Publicity Chairman.

HUGHES DAY

GLENDALE WOMEN ASKED TO JOIN IN DEMONSTRATION FOR CANDIDATE

Glendale women interested in the campaign of Charles E. Hughes for president of the United States are anxious that there should be a large Glendale representation among those who will welcome the Women's Hughes Campaign train which will arrive at noon at the Arcade station in Los Angeles on October 18. This train will carry some of the foremost women writers, social workers and speakers of this country. There will be an automobile reception at the station and a parade through the principal streets with all Hughes and Republican organizations in line. Any Glendale people who can do so are urged to join in this demonstration and are asked to notify Mrs. Charles H. Toll, Glendale 751 or Mrs. Luther G. Brown, Glendale 657 of their intention.

In this connection there will be an informal luncheon at the Alexandria and a mass meeting at 3 o'clock at Trinity Auditorium for both men and women, and dinner at the Alexandria in the evening.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

Principal Richardson D. White, of the Intermediate school, was the speaker at the Rally day exercises at the First Lutheran Sunday school, Sunday. There was a large attendance of both old and young. Mr. White spoke forcibly on the necessity of children forming their characters while they had opportunity by rallying around their great Leader. He emphasized the necessity of faith in this life and said that everywhere the supreme importance of faith was insisted on in God's word, because faith not only led unto the life to come but because without faith there was no excellence in this.

Mrs. Hagin, of Orange street, of Los Angeles, who was connected for a long time with Christian missions in Japan, gave a highly instructive talk on the "Gospel in Japan." She told of the enormous mass of prejudices Japanese Christian converts had to encounter and how bravely some of them faced them. Her tale of the brave fight made for a knowledge of the truth by a little Japanese girl who finally became a missionary was listened to with intense interest by all. P. E. Laichinger, who presided at the organ, directed a program of special music.

MUSIC SECTION

The Music Section of the Tuesday Afternoon club will hold the first meeting of the season, Friday, October 13 at 2 o'clock at the residence of the Curator, Mrs. E. W. Kinney, 1223 West Seventh street. All old and new members are urged to be present as this is the first meeting of the year and matters of importance are to be considered.

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, past president of the club will deliver a lecture on the Italian opera and its development from the year 1600 to the present time. All club members are eligible to the Music Section. The membership dues are $1 per year payable semi-annually. The section meets the second and fourth Fridays of each month at the home of the Curator. Home phone 385.

FAREWELL PARTY

Laurence Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Rowe, of 516 Orange street, was the host Saturday evening to a number of young friends, the affair being in honor of John L. Losh, who is to leave Glendale soon for Albuquerque, N. M. The affair took the form of an old-fashioned taffy pull which occasioned much merriment. About twenty young people were present in compliment to Mr. Losh and to express their regret at his departure from Glendale.

He will talk on one of his favorite subjects, "Public Parks and Playgrounds, Their Value to the Community." This stereopticon lecture will be free to the public. It is to be hoped that the evening of November 2 (the first Thursday of the month) will be kept open, that no other dates will clash with this most important occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Beamon, 245 South Maryland avenue, had as dinner guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Beamon, Darwin avenue, Sunday.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, Oct. 9.—The French transport, Gallia, while conveying 2000 French and Servian troops in the vicinity of the Adriatic, was torpedoed by a German submarine. Other French and British vessels came to the rescue of the sinking ship and 1300 of the men on board were saved. The Gallia was a vessel of 14,000 tons and had been employed in the transport service since the beginning of the operations at Saloniki.

FEAR CREW OF KINGSTONIAN IS LOST

REAR-ADMIRAL KNIGHT SAYS U. S. DESTROYER IS UNABLE TO LOCATE MEN OF TORPEDOED BRITISHER

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.—Rear-Admiral Knight, commander of the Narragansett naval district, wired the navy department here today that the American destroyers sent out to search for the crew of the British steamship Kingstonian, had found no trace of that vessel. The Kingstonian was torpedoed and sunk southeast of Nantucket. The vessel was one of those torpedoed by the U-53, the German submarine that recently put in at Newport.

GERMAN SUBMARINES RAID ATLANTIC COAST

SECRETARY DANIELS SAYS U-53 COMPLIED WITH ALL REGULATIONS GOVERNING FOREIGN VESSELS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 9.—President Wilson was informed today by Secretary Daniels that the German submarine U-53 had complied with all the regulations governing the visits of foreign warships to American harbors. The U-53 after leaving Newport Saturday, passed close to Nantucket Island and when a little to the northwest of that place sank the Stephano, with American passengers on board. the Kingstonian, a British freighter; the Strathdene a British freighter; the West Point, a British freighter, the Bloomerskijk, a Ditch freighter and the Christian Knudsen, a Norwegian freighter. Since then it is reported that three more vessels had been sunk. American destroyers rescued a large number of the crews and passengers of the different vessels.

WHOLE GREEK FLEET JOINS THE REVOLUTION

KING CONSTANTINE DESERTED BY A LARGE NUMBER OF MOST INFLUENTIAL MEN IN COUNTRY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ROME, Oct. 9.—The whole of the Greek fleet has gone over to the revolutionists. This is making it doubly difficult for King Constantine to play his waiting game much longer. The revolutionists have now been joined by the greater number of the influential men of the country. Ex-Premier Venizelos is at Saloniki where he is surrounded by the leaders of the nationalist party. Crete has completely thrown itself into the revolutionary movement and other provinces have followed suit. A large section of the army is now in the Allies' army in Macedonia.

COUNT TERAUCHI COMPLETES HIS CABINET

JAPANESE LEADER FORMS MINISTRY PLEDGED TO UPHOLD JAPAN'S VITAL INTERESTS IN FAR EAST

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

TOKIO, Oct. 9.—Lieutenant General Count Terauchi, appointed by the emperor to form a ministry in place of that of Count Okuma, who recently resigned has managed to get together a cabinet of representative men. This morning Viscount Ichiro Motono, Japanese ambassador to Russia, has cabled his acceptance of the foreign ministry. Count Terauchi, who is the man who "pacified" Korea, promises a policy of strict devotion to the vital interests of Japan, in the Far East. The cabinet will also devote itself to internal improvements and to the guidance and protection of China.

FORESEE COMPLICATIONS FROM U-BOAT WAR

BRITISH NEWSPAPER SAYS MANY DIFFICULTIES WILL ARISE FROM ACTION OF TEUTON SUBMARINE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The Daily Chronicle states today that there are many serious complications in the action of the German submarine U-53, which is sinking Allied and neutral vessels off the American coast. The mere presence of the U-boat is a menace to shipping of every sort and must tie up commerce and raise freights. Counter measures which will inevitably be taken by the Allies will hamper American trade. There are also other points in international law that will inevitably arise. The status of the war submarine is indefinite and the treating of it as an ordinary war vessel is likely to have some after effects that may not be expected at present.

BACK TO WAR TIMES

MRS. E. S. CLARK, 228 N. MARYLAND, HAS PICTORIAL HISTORY OF "WAR OF '61"

Mrs. E. S. Clark, 228 North Maryland avenue, is in possession of an interesting pictorial description of the outbreak of the civil war of 1861. This ancient document is chiefly concerned with the events that took place on and after the firing of Fort Sumter, April 12, 1861. W. H. Clark, Mrs. Clark's husband, who was drafted for the war when he was twenty-two years of age, May 11, 1864, having been sworn in for three years, was a commissary sergeant in the Fifteenth Regiment of the National Guard, of New York state. He saw active service at Fort Richmond.

This old illustrated story of the outbreak of the war is interesting in many points. It is entitled the "Pictorial History of the War of 1861" showing manifestly that in the beginning it was not imagined that the war would last more than a few months or a year at the most. This document is sternly patriotic and full of assurance.

In a short preamble to the story of the events leading up to the cviil war the writer says: "We are profoundly impressed with momentous nature of the contest; but we have an abiding faith in that the God of all Battles is the God of all Wisdom, and that out of the impending chaos of arms He will call our beloved country to a higher and nobler career, free from all stains of barbarism to be a brighter and more consistent example for the emulation of mankind. It is our purpose to preserve the materials from which the history of this war may be written, as dispassionately and as fairly as is in the power of men to do so, who sympathize deeply in what is going on around them, and who hope not to survive 'the Union now and forever, one and indivisible?' "

There is no lack of pictorial illustration to accompany the text. At the head of the front page is shown the flag of Fort Sumter after the bombardment, below it is a striking active scene on the floating battery which aided in the bombardment of the fort. Its four cannon and its reservoirs of shells look like business. Here are pictures of the commissioners of the Southern Confederacy. A picturesque representation of boats guarding Charleston Bar on the night of the bombardment of Fort Sumter. A representation of the flag of the "Confederate States of America" which had a blue square in the upper left hand corner, with seven white stars; three stripes the upper and lower red and the central white. Then comes a view of the city of Charleston, S. C., from the river.

The interesting correspondence of General Beauregard concerning the demand for the evacuation of Fort Sumter and the description of the final bombardment and evacuation of the fort are given with simple realism. It is evident that the Fort Sumter incident was bulking very largely in men's minds at that time. Illustrations of the fort are given on several pages and add greatly to the interest of the old record.

On another page is an illustration of Castle Pickney in Charleston harbor; of Fort Sumter before and after bombardment; of the water battery on Sullivan's Island, Charleston harbor, a double page illustration of the bombardment of Fort Sumter, in which the fort is seen under a perfect storm of shot and shell. Here, too, is an interior view of Fort Moultrie; a picture of the Hon. Edmund Ruffin, of Virginia, who fired the first gun against Fort Sumter; another picture of the floating battery and its floating hospital.

An interesting summary shows that the northern free states had an aggregate of men available for militia of 2,336,816; the confederate states, 378,382, the border slave states 604,724 and the territories, 11,022. The excess of militia of free states over slave states was 1,353,410. The United States regular army consisted of 13,024 men. The southern states had ten small vessels as against 239 naval vessels of the northern states.

Pictures of Colonel Anderson, who defended Fort Sumter, of General Beauregard and of others of the prominent characters of the time. An incident is told of a scene in Henry Ward Beecher's church when he told his audience that he had received news that Fort Sumter had been reinforced and that Fort Moultrie was in ruins. The whole congregation cheered and hurrahed and waved their hats and handkerchiefs. The news of course, was entirely untrue but it helps to show what feelings prevailed. The last picture is that of moving troops to the south from the foot of Canal street, New York City. The whole paper is an instructive voice from the past and a vivid representation of the first days of the five-years' struggle.

LECTURE ON IRELAND

There was a good attendance at the lecture given by Dr. Jerome Hall Raymond at the High school auditorium Friday evening. More than 100 pictures portraying historical features of Ireland were shown. There were wonderful descriptions and pictures of the Giant's Causeway and the Blarney Stone. Both sides of Irish life were described—the high and the low, but the great middle-class was not so much spoken of on account of lack of time. All who have heard Professor Raymond's lectures on Greece and Ireland will want to hear the last in the course, the lecture on Scotland which will be given on the evening of October 13.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached to a large congregation Sunday morning on the topic, "Christ Shrinking from the Cup," using the text found in Matt. 26:39 in which the Savior called out from the cross in the extremity of His agony, "Oh, that this cup might pass from me." It is a sad commentary upon our callousness that we can read this account of the sufferings of our Savior upon the cross and not be moved to the extreme of human sympathy and the deepest appreciation of the great gift to man won by this sublime sacrifice. He suffered even as we might suffer under similar torture only infinitely more. But the extent of His suffering did not for a moment cause Him to regret the price that He was paying for our salvation as long as it was required of Him, on the contrary in the same breath He exclaimed: "Not as I will but as Thou wilt, Oh, Father." This high price paid for us certainly calls for some sacrifice from us and the question is brought home to us as we read the story, what am I sacrificing for Him?

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916

PROSPECTS OF PEACE

One of the most significant incidents of the past few days was the arrival of a German submarine in the harbor of Newport, Rhode Island, bearing dispatches for the German ambassador at Washington. This is an interesting event of itself, and is also a significant comment on the non-arrival of the merchant submarines that have been expected for some time. The submarine U-53 is of course a man-of-war and as such, is allowed to remain only twenty-four hours in the harbor, to take on provisions and supplies and then to depart.

Outside there are doubtless British and French warships patrolling. They are fitted with underwater ears that are designed to catch the faintest throb of a submarine; however the submarine must have been warier than they and having ascertained their whereabouts must have gone very slowly and noiselessly to its destination. However it was done it is a notable feat.

What concerns the world at large and the United States in particular, however, is the report that among the dispatches sent to the German ambassador at Washington, there is a letter to President Wilson from the Kaiser, asking him to make proposals of peace to the Allies. There is not the slightest confirmation of this rumor, but it is singular that it has been current in New York for some days before the appearance of the submarine that peace proposals were to be made by President Wilson.

Evidently there is something in the air looking toward the ending of the war. The statement alleged to have been made by the temporary president of Canada, to the effect that Britain would not require the present supply of shells from Canada after a little while is highly significant if it is accurately quoted.

These are signs that one or other or both sides are desirous of ending the war. When that is the case there are naturally rumors of all kinds. At the same time it is equally to be considered that the British secretary of war munitions Lloyd George recently declared that there would be no cessation of the war until the Allies were able to impose their own terms on the Germans.

Those who have studied the history of wars know that there is always more or less talk of this kind just before the conclusion of a big war. It was the case in the civil war. After Lee had surrendered it will be remembered that Jefferson Davis was declaring from day to day that the war would never end until the north had been driven back to its own bounds.

To read these declarations and then to see how history makes them look foolish should be instructive to those who are studying the present situation in Europe. The nations there on both sides of the struggle are heartily tired of the bloodshed and are looking with anxiety on the future. They will all have a hard time building up what has been broken down and in establishing the new arrangements that must be made to meet the new conditions. There are big armies to be looked after. Immense bodies of men who have tasted the larger freedom of the world and the war, and who will not be content to go back to old conditions. There is the danger of revolt in some countries. All these things are looming larger every day and they are all making for peace. No wonder rumors of peace are flying.

RISING ON OUR DEAD SELVES

It was Tennyson who sang that men "may rise on stepping stones of their dead selves to higher things." That is true of every one who has risen in this world. It is on the stepping stones of a dead past, of a dead yesterday, that one reaches forward to the rewards of a new tomorrow. There is as much opportunity to do that now as ever there was. The determination to rise is requisite and when trial is present there is the need, the determination to struggle and to strife until the goal has been reached.

Abraham Lincoln is the great exemplar of the United States. His remarkable life and the remarkable personality that he evolved for himself are the subjects of constant eulogy and wonder wherever the English language is spoken. That Lincoln was mistaken and vilified by the world of his own time never made any difference to that great man, in the way of altering his determination to persevere unto the end.

It was this perseverance that brought him in due time to the reward that he deserved even though he was not looking for it and then God in His wise providence took him away from this world at the psychological moment and saved him from the commonplace of being an ex-president. That was a career that stands today as the noblest example this country has produced of what its native genius can accomplish. It was accomplished step by step, day by day, by the throwing down of the old self and the rising up of the new. Moment by moment creating a new personality or rather modeling and moulding the personality into the form and shape most desirable.

About the career of Lincoln there is something that remains ever a course of true inspiration. Without family, without any real education such as the ordinary boy receives and makes little use of, Lincoln made an education for himself. Everything he acquired mentally he kept mentally. He attracted attention wherever he went. His shrewdness, his wit, his humor, his marvelous mental clearness, his mental vision, his tact, his cheerfulness, his undaunted courage, his knowledge of men—these were qualities that made him what he was, easily the first, the most courageous, the kindest and the gentlest American of his day and generation.

The goal is within reach of every American schoolboy. The modern boy has a thousand advantages that Lincoln never had. The voice of inspiration is calling to boys of this generation just as they called to Lincoln. Every age has its own problems which must be solved in their own way and by the human products of their own time. Just as Washington was the inspiration of his age and through obloquy, contempt, abuse and neglect brought forth battle unto victory; just as Lincoln never wavered through all the terrible happenings of the civil war never lost faith, never believed otherwise than that the cause of right would win; so the country will need a human character of similar faith and endurance to lead it out of the wilderness of its next trouble.

That this nation has many a problem to solve is certain and that those problems must be solved by the boys of this generation who will be the men of the future is equally certain. There is then a chance for every boy of this age that he may become as great as Washington or Lincoln if only there be present in such a boy's soul the abiding faith and the dauntless courage that characterized those two great men.

"LEAVE NO ARTICLES IN CAR"

There is a reason for the cry of the conductor, "Leave no articles in the car," if the experience of the Interborough Rapid Transit company of New York counts for anything. Something like forty thousand packages are lost every year on the trains of this system. Almost everything that can be carried in the hand has been found at one time or another and turned in at the lost and found department of the road.

Umbrellas lead in the list of lost property, as we might suppose. Most of them are women's umbrellas, but the ladies will not feel so badly when they learn that these are balanced by an almost equal number of walking sticks.

Gloves come next in order. One glove of a pair is generally left behind, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it is the right glove. The reason is that most people are right-handed and lose their gloves when they draw them off to pay fare at the ticket window.

But the variety and range of articles lost is almost beyond imagination There are all kinds of wearing apparel, all kinds of things to eat, false teeth, glass eyes, live animals, love letters, packages of dynamite, burglars' tools, jewelry, manuscripts of novels and hundreds of other things.

The most absent-minded man of all was the one who got off the train leaving his wooden leg behind him. A close second was the one who left on the platform of a subway train a huge bundle containing a bedstead, a mattress, pillows, blankets and sheets.—Wellspring.

An automobile with car wheels is used for fire-fighting purposes on the mountain railroads by the rangers on the Sierra national forest.

CANTON'S FLOATING CITY

Just after sunrise, our great river steamer steamed into the wharf at Canton City, China, writes Sir Robert Baden-Powell in his book, "Boy Scouts Beyond the Seas." Apart from a few big buildings on the river front the city is a mass of low, brown-roofed houses, so like the thousands of brown, roofed-in boats along the bank that it is difficult to see where the houses end and the boats begin.

And these boats, although small, are floating homes of no fewer than 300,000 men, women and children.

They are punted and sculled by the women and children, the women carrying their babies on their backs all the time. I believe this accounts for the flat faces of the Chinese, because when mother is rowing, if she "catches a crab" or misses the water and falls backward, she is liable to squash the baby on her back.

If you peep into one of these boats, you find the cabin beautifully clean and brightly ornamented, however dingy the boat may seem outside.

The small children are tied up like monkeys on a long string, fastened to the roof of the cabin. This enables them to run about, while it prevents them from falling overboard.

I was told that some of them, instead of being tied up, have two empty bottles strapped on to them to act as a buoy, if they fall into the river.

The families do all their cooking on board their boats, buying their firewood and fish and vegetables from traders' boats which ply on the river selling their goods.

It is said that a large number of the boat people have never set foot on land and are very proud of the fact.

COLLECTION LETTERS

Alfred K. Care, the new president of the Los Angeles Creditmen's association, submits two forms of collection letters, designed to get the debtor's attention without arousing antagonism.

Here is one:

"Well! Well! How time does fly: Sixty days since this bill was shipped. Presume you overlooked it same as we did. Never mind, send along your check and we'll forgive the oversight."

Another reads:

"Yes; another bill. You are tired of getting them and it costs us money to send them. Let us save each other a lot of time. Won't you mail us a check today? You will be saved more bother; we will be saved time and postage. Thank you."

And still another in language plain, but not elegant, reads:

"You may not think there is any hell, but if you don't pay this bill, you will know there is."

(Signed) ALFRED K. CARE,

This latter example might be either a threat or a promise.

The recent demand for oil on account of the war has stimulated the fields in the most extraordinary manner and Taft, Fellows, McKittrick and Maricopa are working day and night. Everybody is prosperous in that region. The Standard Oil company and the Santa Fe seemed specially active. BIRD AND FLOWER CLUB

Members of the Bird and Flower club, chaperoned by Mrs. H. C. Ackley, Mrs. Nanno Woods and Mrs. E. Eckman, spent Saturday afternoon on the lower hills of Verdugo mountain, North Glendale. Lunch was eaten at La Ramada park, the happy young people gathering cosily around a large round table, partaking of their repast amidst much good natured merriment and lively conversation. Ernest Reed obtained a button of honor for being the first to spy a bird in the grounds of La Ramada. Later on, in a canyon, a dead blue bird was found; what has been its fate we do not know. After the rainy week, the views from the hills were truly beautiful, the sky was wonderfully blue, the air soft and clear. Birds as well as human beings rejoiced in the balmy, refreshing afternoon and carolled gaily everywhere.

At the next meeting of the club luncheon will be eaten in the garden belonging to Mrs. Eckman, 1621 Burchett street. Members will assemble as usual at headquarters, 1111 Broadway, at 11:45 sharp, and will then proceed to Mrs. Eckman's residence. Each member brings his or her lunch with him; but some little bird has whispered that Mrs. Eckman's mother makes delicious cookies, so perhaps if we are all very good we may come in for some of these toothsome dainties. After lunch is eaten, a trip will be taken to the river which is about ten minutes beyond Burchett street. It might be wise for the young people to wear their rubbers on this occasion; then there will be no fear of wet feet.

CIVIC COMMITTEE OUTLINES WORK

Many a traveler in the heat,
Finds the cooling shade most sweet,
Stops to rest within the shade
That some wayside tree has made,
Feels the moist and dewy air
From a hundred leaflets fair
Fan his heated brow today,
And I think I hear him say:
"Bless the hand that set that tree
On this sunny street for me."

The slogan of the Civic section of the Tuesday Afternoon club for the coming year's work is tree planting and preservation of our wild flowers.

Every citizen is greatly interested in this work and will render all aid possible. One of the first things to do is to get acquainted with the trees on the four sides of your block. How many are there? Are they healthy or needing nourishment?

How many more is there space for? How many hitching posts on your block? Have you a tree in front of your house? If not is there one in your neighbor's parkway? Learn what the trees do for your block.

Watch the people on a warm day and see how they select the shady side of the street. In waiting for a car see them stand under the shade of a tree rather than in the hot sun. Notice the horse whose master leaves him in the heat, creep up until he gets his head under the grateful shade cast by the branches of the shade tree. Think how hot and sunny the horse would be if the tall trees were cut down, which now brings coolness and shade to the rooms.

Many a shutin person watches the graceful swaying branches and restful green of the leaves.

"Do you know this, that a full grown tree sends out 187 gallons of water a day through its leaves into the air?"

Think what a difference that makes in hot, dry weather.

Do you know that trees purify the atmosphere? "The foliage takes in carbonic acid gas, which gas is deliterious to us, and gives out oxygen, which is healthful, indeed indispensable to us?"

Do you know that a tree in front of your house makes it cooler in summer and warmer in winter?

Do you know that it increases the value of property? Do you know that a house with a tree in front of it sells for more than without one? Do you know that half the people do not know these facts and do not appreciate them till some one speaks of it?

Do you know that you and I can help the city of Glendale by knowing these facts, letting other people know them too, and lending a helping hand in tree planting.

If you think a tree crusade would be worth while send in your name and any idea you wish to express. Have each person interested now and in ten years from now the acres of Glendale parkway will be green forests.

1. I will make every effort to have trees planted in my block.
2. I will encourage other individuals to plant and cherish trees.
3. I will insist on the protection of trees from fires when lots are being cleaned.
4. I will aid in the conservation of our wild flowers, and spread the gospel of not plucking them, at least not by the root.
5. Name .....
6. Street .....
7. Phone .....

Trees are the handiwork of God and we must band together in their planting and defense.

MRS. ELLA W. RICHARDSON,
Chairman of Civics of Tuesday Afternoon club.

TWILIGHT ON TWEED

Three crests against the saffron sky,
Beyond the purple plain,
The kind remembered melody
Of Tweed once more again. . . .

A mist of memory broods and floats,
The Border waters flow;
The air is full of ballad notes,
Borne out of long ago.

Old songs that sung themselves to me,
Sweet through a boy's daydream,
While trout below the blossom'd tree
Plashed in the golden stream. . . .
—Andrew Lang.

MARKING LINEN

A quick and attractive way to mark sheets, pillow cases, towels and other flat work for the laundry, so that ugly indelible ink markings will not be made, is to place a small initial in cross-stitch, embroidered with a dull blue, on the inside of the hem or in the corner of unmarked towels. This catches the eye of the laundry marker, and prevents the unsightly inked letter.

WASTE TAN BARK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—A method for using waste hemlock tanbark to practically replace expensive rag stock in the manufacture of felt roofing has been developed at the forest products laboratory and is now being used commercially by cooperating mills, according to an announcement made by the forest service. It is stated that, in these mills, from twenty to thirty per cent. of the rags is being replaced by waste bark and that the quality of the finished product is equal to that manufactured solely from rags. Members of the forest service who have been conducting the experiments say that the utilization of the bark will make it possible to effect a considerable saving in the manufacture of felt roofing.

According to the census of 1909, over 698,000 tons of hemlock bark were produced each year in the United States. After the tannin is extracted this bark is used for fuel purposes, for which it is said to have a value of 60 cents per ton.

The extent of the savings rendered possible by the new methods is pointed out by the fact that the roofing mills of the United States have a total estimated annual production of 237,000 tons of finished roofing of all kinds, equal to about 11,300,000 "squares." By a "square" of roofing is meant 100 square feet. The utilization of the waste bark in this industry should, it is said, enable the mills to reduce their manufacturing costs appreciably.

Thousands of tons of redwood bark which is considered fully equal to hemlock tanbark for felt roofing manufacture are destroyed annually in California. The bark, often two or three feet thick, is burned by the loggers to get it out of the way before the logs are removed from the woods. The utilization of the bark would therefore not only give California a new industry, but would also directly lessen the cost of logging and prevent the damage often done to logs by fire during the burning of the bark.

In addition to the use of the bark for roofing, papers made at the forest products laboratory on the basis of eighty per cent. of waste tanbark, have been successfully printed on a commercial twelve-color wall-paper printing machine, and gives promise of being entirely satisfactory.

Other paper of the same make-up has been made into fibre conduits by a commercial manufacturer.

Other possible uses of waste bark which suggest themselves, say the forest service paper experts, are the use of bark mixed with ground wood for the production of wall board, or with sulphite screenings in the manufacture of car liners. Studies already made at the forest products laboratory indicate that it may be possible to use waste hemlock and oak tanbark in making sheathing paper, carpet liners, bottle wrappers, deadening left and the like.

THE CAMERA MAN IN THE WAR

Nowhere has the camera man proved himself so essential as in aeroplane scouting. From his vantage point, often directly above the enemy, little remains concealed. His camera looks into the fortifications and trenches, he spies upon the position of the troops and locates concealed batteries. Such photographs keep a commander informed of the exact position of his own and the enemies' troops, outposts and cavalry along the entire battle line, and prevent unexpected blows, thus practically eliminating the element of surprise heretofore of great importance.

As a rule the photographer who goes aloft in the aeroplane service is a volunteer, for the work is extra hazardous. In the German army the age limit is fixed at 28 years.

Each month the supply train of a large eastern railroad goes from one place to another collecting waste material. This method of collecting scrap is thus described in The World's Work:

"The supply train is equipped with a powerful electric magnet, which picks up scrap metal all along the line, and deposits it in one main bin.

"Here from four to six trained operators sort the material. In this way more than a hundred tons of metal is collected. About forty per cent of this amount is reclaimed and put back into service."

BURBANK

Burbank's Trustees Meet

It was decided by the Burbank city trustees at Tuesday night's meeting that Dr. E. H. Thompson, chairman of the board of health, should have an assistant, the doctor appearing before the board and asking for the same, as the new state dairy laws impose double duties on health officers in communities where dairying is prevalent. Until such a time as the board can create a new ordinance governing the health department to meet the new demands of the state law, Dr. Thompson will be reimbursed for the cost of hiring an assistant.

It was the suggestion of Dr. Thompson that the city create a restricted district for the keeping of certain animals. The subject was turned over to a citizens' committee for a report. The committee named is composed of Dr. E. H. Thompson, R. O. Church and W. F. Craig.
